change setting options. If this is not enough, you can also make changes to your email settings, used to receive emails or notices whenever anything is detected or when the program is activated. It carries out various functions, some of them practical, such as photo editing, others fun, like funky frames and masques, and others serious, such as its monitoring mode. This software also offers you the option to adjust your webcam for different angles and even to add filters on your webcam video. ArcSoft WebCam Companion allows you to choose from many different filters to give your webcam image a specific look and make it more memorable. arcsoft webcam companion is a great webcam companion. it has a good amount of useful tools, and its capture and video editing options are great. the live monitoring feature is a great addition, but the face and motion detection isn't as good as it could be, and the editing tools are a bit limited. any mac users who have used active desktop can use arcsoft webcam companion. you can even buy a license from the webcam companion website and use your computer as a surveillance station. the software runs in the background of your browser without any interference and so it is not a resource hog. you do have to pay a yearly fee for the software, but it is the best webcam surveillance software. the two plugins we tried worked well, but we detected a flaw in arcsoft webcam companion. the software does not save the recordings of the log files to the hard drive. this means that if your pc crashes, or you run out of space, you will lose your log files. this is a major failing. the fact that this is not properly documented on the website is also a shortcoming. arcsoft webcam companion has a large number of features, including face detection, motion detection, and a website-based link to the software that lets you control your webcam remotely. in our tests, the face detection was particularly impressive and worked well. but arcsoft webcam companion does not have a timer feature for the motion detection, so you are reliant on the computer being on. arcsoft webcam companion lets you monitor your computer from the comfort of your browser. it is a free download and offers a range of ways to control it, such as ftp, email, website, and a timer function.
